QPS Benchmarking
National Quality Indicator App

Streamline your mandatory reporting

The QPS National Quality Indicator App has been custom built to support the requirements and methods prescribed by the Department of Health.

QPS Benchmarking has in-built the 70+ page manual from the Department of Health into the app to simplify the entire process for you.

This app removes the need for you to develop your own in-house systems and removes the possibility of non-compliance.

Key Features

- Measure and assess data exactly as described by the Department of Health

- Audits recorded for each individual resident

- Summary data auto calculated live in the app

- Archives a history of all audits for record keeping compliance

"Measurements and assessments must be done exactly as prescribed in this instruction manual"

"Information from existing data sets (e.g. incident reporting systems) must not be used where information has been collected differently to what is prescribed in this manual"

Australian Government Department of Health

THE NATIONAL QUALITY INDICATORS

As of the 1 July 2019, the Australian Government Department of Health have introduced the National Aged Care Mandatory Quality Indicator Program that includes compulsory requirements to collect and record indicator data for the following:

• Pressure injuries
• Use of physical restraint
• Unplanned weight loss

The QPS National Quality Indicator App has been custom built to support the requirements and methods prescribed by the Department of Health.

You can be sure when using the QPS National Quality Indicator App that your required data will be provided to the Secretary of the Australian Government of Health, in accordance with the legislative requirements.
